“We’re very excited about returning to Vernon for this important community project,” said John Hiebert, President of TASK Construction Management. “We’re also looking forward to re-connecting with the many contractors and vendors that made our earlier Vernon-specific projects so successful.”

TASK’s previous Okanagan projects include the Vernon Performing Arts Centre and Vernon Multi-use Arena (now Wesbild Centre), as well as the Fortis B.C. Operation Centre. Additionally TASK’s portfolio consists of several libraries including the recently completed Coquitlam Poirier Library.

“TASK has an ongoing reputation for rapid, high-quality project delivery while ensuring on-time schedules and on-budget spending,” adds Hiebert. “We consistently strive to offer exceptional construction services in every one of our projects – the new Vernon library will be no different.”

The new branch, which has an estimated budget of $11 million will be located at 2808 – 30th Avenue and will have a targeted opening in late 2011, early 2012. TASK’s first order of business will be to work with the Okanagan Regional Library to hire an architect to design the facility.
